Creating a MySpace Account for a Fictional Character

- Pick a character for the play that interests you. For a challenge pick a character that is of the opposite sex.
- Knowing what you have read about this person, create an account using your email address. Consider these elements:
  - Color Schemes
  - Layout (check out http://www.myspacegeeks.com/myspace-layouts/)
  - Genre sections (i.e. Favorite music, Friends, About me, Profiles, etc.)
- Invite other characters to be friends with you.
- Write on another character’s page.

Just some general stuff(about 7 tricks College for Business and Commercial) only have to write my degree)(I'm also very active in student's life and different self-government organisations organisations that work for students and young people). A former member of the 5-member executive board. Currently in charge of running the office and coordination.

past 2008

I also work for the youth centres in our town. I do a lot of design for the centres from posters, flyers, small brochures and stuff like that. I also work on different projects such as Media Movies, Literacy Books, International Exchanges, congresses, organizing events, promoting people, running workshops, photography, and just socializing with people.

In my free time I spent a lot of time working with PHOTOSHOP, I have been practicing for almost 4 years now. I have had 2 exhibitions of my own, and I am co-author and co-organizer. My photos were displayed on two fashion shows. I also know how to work with Illustrator and InDesign with HTML codes, work with Flash and all kinds of software.

I also like photography and almost everything about it, except the theoretical part. I am very quickly, specially computer software and I'm always open for
